Change to Public Health Orders Regarding Travel:

The Manitoba public health orders will be amended on Friday, January 29 to specify that anyone entering Manitoba from anywhere in Canada will be required to self-isolate for 14 days. This includes those entering from northern and Western Canada, and from west of Terrace Bay in Ontario, which under previous health orders did not require self-isolation.

Current exemptions to self-isolation measures are still in effect including those traveling for essential interprovincial work and people travelling for medical purposes. There will also continue to be exemptions for people who regularly travel to and from communities near the borders for essential purposes.

Manitobans currently out-of-province will have until 11:59 p.m., Thursday, January 28 to return to the province without being required to self-isolate. If they arrive after that time, they must self-isolate as appropriate on their return.
